The most effective strategy for teaser betting is football games and moving the spreads through key numbers.

In a six-point teaser, the most valuable line moves take the spread through both three and seven.

For example, you can tease an underdog from +2 to +8 or a favorite from -8 to -2.

Ten is also a key number, so teasing an underdog from +6 to +12 is a great strategy that goes through two key numbers.

Football is generally safer and more popular than basketball in the teasers market because basketball does not have key numbers.

There are far more points scored in basketball than in football, causing a greater variety in margins of victory.

If you compare the NFL with college football, there is a lot more parity in the NFL, making it easier to win teasers.

You generally don't see a ton of double-digit blowouts in a single NFL week, whereas they happen all the time in college football.
