Point spreads are used in Maryland gambling for a variety of reasons.

The vigorish means that there is a little bit of leeway for the sportsbooks when they make their odds as the house edge means that they can be off by a small amount.

This means that gamblers can pick either side and get very similar odds and potential returns.

Spreads between two teams where one is favored by a touchdown are very common in the NFL.

The average margin of victory in the NFL is much smaller than college football.
