“When you line shop, you are looking for the lowest vig: -105 compared to -110, for example.

And you will lose less when you are wrong if you pay less vig.

The vig, or hold, on a futures bet is much higher.

For example, here are prices offered from a June baseball game between the Arizona Diamondbacks and San Diego Padres.

In fact, you could have bet both sides of the market and locked in a small profit no matter the outcome.

In such a scenario, if exactly seven runs had been scored, you would have pushed on one bet and won the other.

Access to multiple sportsbooks, of course, is critical for this approach because each could offer a different price and number.
