But is selling on Amazon as simple as it seems?

And that's not taking into consideration that selling and flipping are not e

Flipping items takes time and dedication

If you're looking to make a good (and steady) amount of money off Amazon, it takes patience. As Jungle Scout notes, just 20 percent of Amazon sellers in 202 0 saw profits within the first three months and only 17 percent of sellers were profitable between three and six months. The good news? A majority (64 percent) of sellers saw some sort of profit by the end of their first year of selling.

So what's the key to flipping stuff on Amazon? Finding "low-difficulty niches," as Ecommerce CEO suggests. Using sites like Jungle Scout, you can

and additional monetizing opportunities." Be sure to avoid name-brand prod ucts and go for something generic while you're at it - if a consumer wants t o buy something that's name-brand, they're more likely to buy directly f rom Amazon than a third-party seller such as yourself.
