Five-star reviews made out of wooden blocks appear to pop out of a smartphone ge source, Getty Images

In doing so, it was able to tie its sham "customers" to dozens of other r highly-rated British firms, including a dentist and a stockbroker.

Previous research from Which? suggests that nearly half of people who check online reviews of local businesses read them on Google.

A reviewer who claimed to have lived in Surrey for years while praising a local car company, and a Glasgow electric gate firm 412 miles (663 km) away for work on n his home

The same reviewer also praised a dentist in Manchester, a paving firm in Bournemouth, outh, and a Cambridgeshire locksmith, who allegedly saved his toddler from a locked car

Why does it matter?

Richard Boatwright says Google refuses to take down fake reviews which are damaging his business

Which? did find that one of the fake reviews was removed by Google during the course of its investigation - but the firm it bought from said it would "slow down" the rate of fake review posting so future ones would "stick":

The legalization of sports betting in California will have to wait until 2024 at the earliest.

9, 2022: Flutter CEO Peter Jackson remains hopeful about California sports betting, despite the defeat of Proposition 27.

8, 2022: Voters rejected both California sports betting measures by a significant margin, translating to no legal sports betting in the short term or for years to come.

Sept.

12, 2022: Sensing a shift in momentum against their campaign to legalize online sports betting, major online sportsbooks strike back in a series of ads pushing Proposition 27.

Both initiatives will go before voters in November 2022.

June 30, 2022: Two Native American tribes side with major sportsbooks and the online sports wagering measure.

13, 2019: The California Legalize Sports Betting on American Indian Lands Initiative, a measure supported by 18 Californian tribes, is first introduced.
