They're calculated with a $100 wager in mind, but don't worry, you don't have to ante up three figures to get in the game.

In sports betting, this relates specifically to point spreads.

For example, when the team you bet on is up by a lot with only a few minutes remaining, but ends up losing.

But this isn't the case on sportsbooks.

That same coin flip bet would likely be listed with odds like heads (-110) and tails (-110).

it greatly decreases the chance of actually winning.

Let's say you want to bet on the Green Bay Packers to win (-110) and the total score of the game to be more than 50 points (-125).

Nothing like a Gatorade shower to celebrate a win.
